Washington, DC – The Council of Korean Americans (CKA) and the Korean American Coalition - Los Angeles (KAC-LA) will be commemorating the 30th anniversary of the April 29, 1992, Los Angeles Riots with a leadership conference on April 30th in Koreatown, Los Angeles at The LINE LA Hotel.

The conference will feature speakers including:

- Mayor of the City of Los Angeles Eric Garcetti
- US Congressman Andy Kim
- US Congresswoman Marilyn Strickland
- Historian and University of California Riverside Professor Edward Chang

The riots and civil unrest of April 29, 1992, a date given the moniker “Saigu”, was a traumatic period in Los Angeles’ history and one of the most devastating civil disruptions that impacted the Korean American community. Saigu erupted after systemic failures by the government, law enforcement, the judicial system, and the media to address the concerns and needs of minority communities throughout the region. As a result, 63 people were killed, more than 2,000 businesses were destroyed, and over a billion dollars of property damage incurred. The Korean American community suffered almost half of the property losses from the riots.

“Saigu is a moment of reflection for our community and country,” said Abraham Kim, Executive Director of CKA. “Thirty years ago, our nation was rocked by a transformative awakening, exposing failures that our society had to change. As we reflect on the lessons of the past thirty years, we see that our nation and community have made progress. The Korean American community has grown in political power, and we see greater Black-Asian solidarity. But the events of the past few years remind us of the importance of continuing to build on those investments and the lessons of our history.”

To commemorate this milestone event, CKA and KAC-LA are hosting a full-day conference on April 30 to reflect on the lessons of the past 30 years and inspire the next generation of leaders to continue the work of civic engagement, reconciliation, and bridge-building among communities.

“Many young Korean Americans were born after Saigu, and don’t have the lived experience of that event,” said Eunice Song, Executive Director of KAC-LA. “It’s CKA and KAC-LA’s joint mission to share with future generations our community’s history. Our goal for this conference is to instill lessons in leadership, collaboration, and public service for the betterment of our communities across this country.”
